The York County Emergency Management Agency and the Southern Maine Regional Planning Commission are working together on updating the Hazard Mitigation Plan for York County. The Federal Disaster Mitigation Act of 2000 mandates that, in order for local governments to continue to receive disaster relief funding from FEMA, your locality must update the existing plan every three years. This updated plan must be in place by October 2010.

As we prepare the update, WE NEED YOUR INPUT. In order for us to update the plan, we need to hear from you. Please come prepared to discuss the following issues:

- What types of natural and man-made disasters most threaten you and your property?
- What should your town and/or York County to do to help minimize damage from future disasters?
- How willing are you to use public funding to minimize future damage?
- How has the response of local, state and federal officials been to past disasters?
